

julianne & david MAY 2, MISSION VIEJO

Julianne Rosenfeld (26 and a marketing communications specialist) and David Askew (27 and a financial adviser) both went to Chapman University, but never crossed paths. Five years later, one of Julianne's coworkers accidentally added David as a friend on MySpace, thinking it was his older brother. David had no idea who this girl was, so he searched her friend list to see if they had any common friends—Julianne was the only one whose face he sort of recognized. He messaged her asking about the girl and they got to talking and realized they had a lot in common, like the fact that they lived a few blocks away from each other. One year, one month and one day after they started dating (yes, it was planned), David proposed at Disneyland in front of Sleeping Beauty's castle. The next year and five months were spent planning a wedding of black, white and lime green. —JD
